

Global Inclusion Board Members

•
Bios
•

February 25, 2026

Alt TXT: A white female with short blonde hair in her late 40s wearing a black suit with a white background with a window reflection in the background.

KR Liu Bio

KR Liu is a trailblazing innovator, brand storyteller, and executive leader. Currently serving as Global Head of Product Innovation & Partnership Marketing at Google, she has spent over 30 years launching breakthrough products and shaping inclusive strategy at the intersection of technology and culture.

KR has been widely recognized for her leadership, advocacy, and impact. She was appointed by the Biden administration to serve in the U.S. Access Board, advising on national accessibility standards, and was honored with a U.S. Congressional Award for her work advancing disability rights. She most recently served as the 2025 Jury President for the Glass: Lion for Change at Cannes Lions and has earned accolades from ADWEEK, Campaign, and Women We Admire. She was named a 2024 Top Women Leader by Women We Admire, appeared on the cover of ADWEEK in March 2023, and was recognized as a 2022 AdAge Leading Woman, a Campaign 40 Over 40 honoree, a 2021 ADWEEK Creative 100 Honoree.

KR has built her career by redefining what leadership can, and should, look like. At Google, she launched and led the company's first-ever brand accessibility function, a pioneering role focused on external marketing, inclusive storytelling, and authentic disability representation in advertising. At Doppler Labs, as VP of Advocacy & Accessibility, she championed the integration of lived disability experience into product development and public policy. Her impact extends beyond the tech industry—she played a key role in the passage of the Over-the-Counter Hearing Aid Act, helping set new legislative and industry standards for accessibility across communications and consumer tech.